

Helios Energy named "Best of the Boro"

May 21, 2012 - Green Buildings

Helios Energy Systems, one of the New York Metro Area's premier integrators and installers of residential and commercial photovoltaic solar systems, recently received a notable recognition. Helios was honored with the designation of Best Renewable Energy Installer in the "Best of the Boro" Home and Garden Services Awards Program. Helios is a subsidiary of national fenestration manufacturer Crystal Window & Door Systems.

"I am quite pleased that our success is beginning to be recognized," said Dr. Ho Chien, the general manager for Helios. "Our efforts, although still modest, are gaining much momentum. I predict this will be the first of many awards for Helios."

The "Best of the Boro" series of awards is administered by one of Queens' leading weekly newspapers - the Queens Courier.

Selection of Best of the Boro winners is based on votes received from the public. Queens is one of the five Boroughs in New York City and the second largest in population with approximately 2.2 million residents.

Helios Energy Systems provides design, sales and installation services to home and building owners and serves as a wholesale distributor of solar PV power systems throughout the Northeast, with emphasis on the New York City tri-state metropolitan area.
