Brooklyn, NY According to Ariel Property Advisors, McNally Lee has been promoted to director in the investment sales division. In addition to originating and executing exclusive sales listings in the borough, he is responsible for leading business development and networking initiatives.

Lee will report to Paul McCormick, senior vice president of investment sales and capital services. In his role, Lee will work with Sean Kelly Esq., senior director, to implement business transactions and strengthen the company's presence.

"McNally has proven himself to be a powerful force in the investment sales market, and we are thrilled about adding him to our team of top-notch Brooklyn professionals," McCormick said.

Since joining Ariel Property Advisors as an associate in May of 2017, Lee has participated in the marketing of exclusive listings, with an aggregate value exceeding $150 million. Prior to joining the firm, Lee spent three years at Cushman & Wakefield's Brooklyn office, where he was involved in the origination, underwriting, marketing and sale of over 60 properties valued at more than $800 million.

"McNally is a rising star in the New York City investment sales community and brings a vast amount of knowledge about real estate," said Shimon Shkury, president and founder of Ariel Property Advisors. "We look forward to McNally leveraging Ariel Property Advisors' platform, working closely with the partners and senior directors, and further entrenching our presence in Brooklyn."

McNally S. Lee holds a B.A. in Politics from Bates College, where he was a member of the Varsity Men's Lacrosse team.

"I am excited to be taking this step at a firm that is extremely well-positioned for growth in Brooklyn, and happy to be playing role in the firm's ongoing efforts to help our communities," Lee said. "The research division and operational support, combined with a top-notch talent pool and team-oriented approach, gives us, investment sales professionals, the support we need to best serve our clients."
