

Jones Lang LaSalle promotes Wrench to international director

July 08, 2011 - Spotlights

According to Jones Lang LaSalle (JLL), Giles Wrench has been promoted to international director. He joins the firm's select group of international directors who are recognized for delivering exceptional results for clients and driving the firm's growth.

Wrench oversees a team of real estate professionals in New York who leverage JLL's international platform of services to support U.S. clients with real estate needs.

He has been involved in real estate transactions across Europe, Asia and the Americas and is regarded as an expert in the field of international real estate.

"Our International Directors have built successful careers connecting with clients and colleagues across the world to create superior value," said Colin Dyer, chief executive officer of Jones Lang LaSalle. "As we congratulate them on achieving this latest distinction, we expect them to use their skills and experience to generate continued growth and lead us into new markets and service areas."

Prior to joining Jones Lang LaSalle, Wrench was an executive vice president with The Staubach Co., where he oversaw the partnership between Staubach and DTZ, its international joint-venture partner. Earlier, he served with BNP Paribas S.A.

Wrench received a bachelor's degree in real estate from the University of Westminster in London. He earned a certificate in real estate finance and investment from New York University. Wrench is an active member of the New York Chapter of the Royal Institution of Chartered Surveyors.

Jones Lang LaSalle is a leader in the New York tri-state commercial real estate market, with more than 1,700 of the most recognized industry experts offering brokerage, capital markets, facilities management, consulting, and project and development services.
