

WDF CEO Roman named Man of the Year by the Yeshiva of South Shore

April 23, 2012 - Spotlights

Larry Roman, CEO of WDF Inc., was named Man of the Year by the Yeshiva of South Shore at the school's 55th Annual Awards Banquet, held March 4, at the New York Hall of Science in Queens.

Accepting the award, Roman said, "I consider myself not Man of the Year, but the Luckiest Man of the Year."

He said, "Success in business has to do with good fortune, and I've been lucky enough to be surrounded by the right people. This gives me better odds and helps me make the right decisions in getting the work and performing the work. WDF has the right people."

Roman also noted that he was glad to have the opportunity to speak about "the need for infrastructure projects in the State" to National Leadership Award honoree Peter King, U.S. Congressman and Chairman of the House Committee on Homeland Security, and King's presenter and 2009 Man of the Year, NYS Senate Majority Leader Dean Skelos. King and Skelos are widely recognized as two of the State's top elected leaders.

Rabbi Mordecai Kamenetzky, the Yeshiva's original founder in 1956, presented the Man of the Year award, saying that Roman "represents the leadership and generosity that it takes to rebuild this great city. His work ethic and innovation is a model for our students who are entering a new era of elementary school education with engineering, science and technology incorporated into the core curriculum."
