

Goldsmith joins Tarter Krinsky & Drogin as partner

May 07, 2012 - Front Section

According to Tarter Krinsky & Drogin LLP, Amy Goldsmith has joined the firm as a partner in the Intellectual Property Practice Group.

She provides practical legal advice and connections to grow clients' businesses with an emphasis on intellectual property. She advises clients on whether a new trademark is available in the U.S. and globally, if patents should be a part of their strategy, and if the design team's new product shares too many features of the competition's copyrighted bestseller. She will design contracts that make sense. If a dispute is on the horizon, she is by her clients' side until a fair resolution is reached.

Goldsmith protects the global interests of national and international clients in a variety of industries, including pet products, fashion, financial services, marketing automation, publishing, medical devices, and consumer and designer goods.

"Tarter Krinsky & Drogin is pleased to welcome Amy Goldsmith as a partner in our expanding Intellectual Property Practice Group," said Alan Tarter, TKD's managing partner. "Amy brings over 20 years of experience in all areas of litigation, prosecution and licensing regarding trademarks, copyrights and patents for both national and international clients."

Goldsmith is a director of the New York Women's Bar Association. She is also a member of the New York City and American Bar associations and is on the Board of Directors of Savvy Ladies, a non-profit whose mission is to educate women to be financially savvy. She is a frequent lecturer on intellectual property topics for Lawline, and she is the author of several articles pertaining to intellectual property for Tableware Today magazine.

Before joining Tarter Krinsky & Drogin, Goldsmith was a partner at Gottlieb, Rackman & Reisman, P.C. Goldsmith received her B.S. from Cornell University in 1982 and her J.D. from Benjamin N. Cardozo School of Law in 1985.

New York Real Estate Journal - 17 Accord Park Drive #207, Norwell MA 02061 - (781) 878-4540