

Kemper System America promotes Steinberg as national sales manager

October 16, 2012 - Design / Build

Brett Steinberg was promoted to national sales manager for Kemper System America, Inc. He is responsible for all sales territories across the U.S., as well as supporting the Canadian operations. Sales in the N.Y. area are still being managed by regional manager Krzysztof Dobrzanski.

Before his promotion in May, Steinberg was east coast sales manager for Kemper System since January, and an account executive in the N.Y. region since May 2009.

Kemper System is a worldwide leader and manufacturer of cold liquid-applied reinforced waterproofing, surfacing and roofing membrane systems, including "odor-free" systems, in growing demand for occupied buildings, and both new and existing construction for healthcare and universities.

Prior to joining Kemper, Steinberg served in a number of field sales and marketing promotional roles for such well-known brands as Red Bull, and U.S. Smokeless Tobacco.

Steinberg earned a B.A. in Communications from Richard Stockton College in Pomona, N.J., and currently resides in Hoboken, N.J.

Kemper employs a nationwide network of committed sales representatives and a staff of professional technical support consultants that provide expert counseling, evaluation and long-term, built-to-last solutions for plazas, green roofs, new roofs assemblies, existing roof recovery, metal roofs, balconies and terraces, historic restoration, gutterways, interior and industrial applications and below-grade waterproofing.

Kemper's regional sales representatives are supported by an internal Sales-Tech Desk, staffed by a highly trained and experienced technical staff to support applications throughout the U.S. and Canada.

Kemper System offers solvent-free / odor-free products which are self-flashing, cold-applied, monolithic reinforced membranes providing guaranteed protection. They are ideal for waterproofing, roofing and surfacing virtually any condition on the building envelope.
