National Association of REALTORS Annual

Convention:

Board OKs Exploration of World-Class Headquarters

The NAR board of directors at its meeting in San Francisco unanimously approved an ambitious project to be undertaken with a major partner that would turn the association's headquarters into a world-class property that is intended to become the next destination building in the iconic Chicago skyline.

The board also approved some changes to the Code of Ethics to enhance the industry's professional standards.

The board took up a number of key matters at its meeting, which closed out the 2013 REALTORS Conference & Expo. The conference attracted 22,500 members and guests for five days of education sessions, meetings, and the expo.
