

Hunt adds Raeman to Rochester office

April 07, 2014 - Upstate New York

According to Hunt Engineers, Architects & Land Surveyors, P.C., Robert Raeman has joined their Rochester office staff as a senior project manager with business development responsibilities.

Raeman is a senior project manager with 30 years of experience in providing technical services to area clients. Raeman's advancement through senior administrative and supervisory posts culminated in ownership of his own firm, and subsequently, a principal's role from 2008-2013.

Raeman both offers creative, engineering design solutions and enjoys deep relationships with clients in the municipal, college, and institutional fields.

His ability to negotiate inter-municipal and complicated owner and contractor interactions is bolstered by numerous professional affiliations and community engagements. Bob's experience in water and waste water design is the perfect fit for the municipal client base that Hunt has serviced for several years.
