

Postler & Jaeckle Corp. celebrates 50th anniversary

June 09, 2014 - Upstate New York

Leading mechanical contractor and engineering firm Postler & Jaeckle, which employs 210 people in Rochester and 400 employees across New York and Pennsylvania, will celebrate its 50th anniversary with a yearlong series of events in 2014.

The company, which is headquartered at 615 South Ave., plans, executes and maintains large-scale heating, ventilation, air conditioning and plumbing systems for commercial, industrial and institutional buildings. Postler & Jaeckle conducts $90 million of mechanical engineering work annually throughout the northeastern United States for private building owners, municipalities, educational institutions, corporations, developers and construction companies.

Notable local buildings that Postler & Jaeckle has worked on include Eastman School of Music and Wegmans on East Ave.

Other notable projects conducted during the company's history include the 1980 Lake Placid Winter Olympics bobsled run, First Federal Plaza in Buffalo, the National Baseball Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, University of Rochester Medical Center (URMC), Cornell University Animal Hospital and the Cornell Life Science Building. In addition to its office in Rochester, the company also has facilities in Syracuse, Albany, Lyons, Binghamton, Horseheads (N.Y.) and Pittston, Pa.

In honor of its anniversary, Postler & Jaeckle will host a yearlong series of companywide celebratory events, as well as local market activities at each of its offices. Events will include a gala event to honor its employees, customers and vendors.

"We are so thankful to our entire Postler & Jaeckle employee team, and to our many customers and partners, for everything they've done to make our company a success over the past half century," said Beth Postler, principal of Postler & Jaeckle Corp.

"While our business has changed significantly over the decades â€" as we've tackled increasingly complex projects and have added new employees and additional offices â€" it makes me proud that our company's culture and values have remained firmly in place," said Erich Postler Jr., principal of Postler & Jaeckle Corp. "At Postler & Jaeckle, craftsmanship, integrity, service and expertise are the principles that have made our company a leader in our industry."
