

Beningson joins Parsons Brinckerhoff N.Y.C. team

July 14, 2014 - Design / Build

Marc Beningson has been named communications, security, and control systems manager in the N.Y.C. office of Parsons Brinckerhoff. In his new position, he is responsible for providing solutions for the firm's clients in access control, video surveillance, SCADA, radio, ITS, data and voice communications, networks, and systems integration for control systems for airports, transit systems, bridges, and tunnels in the Northeast and nationally.

Beningson has 30 years of experience in design, deployment, systems integration and construction of large-scale systems for local, state, and federal agencies with specific expertise in airport security as well as IP networks to support specialty systems.

Prior to joining Parsons Brinckerhoff, he was a principal with Beningson and Associates, LLC, providing services for systems integrators and contractors pursuing large-scale security and IT projects. He has also held senior management positions with several national consulting firms and systems integrators. He received a B.S.M.E. degree from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute.
