

Kirchhoff-Consigli Construction Management ranks in Capital Region's top general contractor

September 08, 2014 - Upstate New York

Kirchhoff-Consigli Construction Management (KCCM) has been ranked among the Top General Contractors in the New York region by the Albany Business Review.

KCCM was recently ranked in the Top 25 of the Capitol Region's Top General Contractors by the Albany Business Review, based on 2013 Capital Region gross billings, with the University at Albany, State University of New York, new Business School and the New York State Capitol Building as its largest projects in the region.

The Albany Business Review also ranked the University at Albany Mohawk Tower at #9 on the list of the Capital Region's Top Construction Project, based on the total project value for projects currently underway or completed in 2014. Kirchhoff-Consigli Construction Management is the general contractor for this $34 million, complete renovation of the 440-bed State University residence hall.

Kirchhoff-Consigli Construction Management is a full-service construction manager and general contractor serving academic, healthcare, institutional and corporate clients throughout the Hudson Valley and the Capital District.
