Buffalo, NY According to the partners of Carmina Wood Morris, DPC (CWM), they will be adding four new members to their team—Joseph Troia and Bradley Everdyke are being promoted from intern architects to full time architectural designers; and Aaron Henderson, AIA and Olivia Arcara are joining as full time architects. CWM has also appointed two new architectural interns and two interior design interns.

These new team members will continue to lead the firm through improvements in project implementation while maintaining their roles as designers in the firm for a diverse range of projects.

Henderson, Everdyke, and Arcara are all University at Buffalo alumni; Henderson is also a registered architect in the state of New York. Troia is a recent graduate of Alfred State SUNY College of Technology.

One of CWM's partners, Steve Carmina, said "We are looking forward to their continued success as members of this firm, as well as their many contributions to developing the future of CWM."

A leader in local historic preservation efforts, CWM was honored in February as the firm celebrated their sixteenth year of business in the Architecture Engineering and Interior Design industry. CWM has developed a distinct reputation for their design and technical skills. The principals of CWM credit the success of their firm to the attention to detail, aesthetics, and service given to each project and client. They are a dynamic team collaborating to achieve innovative solutions, grounded in core values, respected in their profession and community.
