What was your most notable project, deal, transaction or professional achievement in 2017?

We worked with a real estate company to develop an ongoing assessment and information data security program to help them meet all the ongoing requirements and avoid suffering a major security breach. During the course of this we developed some new capabilities to meet the company's demands which led to a whole bunch of cool research being done in-house.

This included new ways to bypass physical access control systems and gain access to buildings, better ways for organizations to teach security awareness training, and identifying various groups who seem to be targeting the sector with a view to stealing personal information like social security numbers and bank account information and disrupting operations.

We then continued to build upon this research as the year progressed to offer benefits to all our clients.
