Michael Heller,

The office cooperative includes the entire 12th floor totaling 9,360 s/f and the building's penthouse totaling 2,309 s/f. The property also includes a 4,750 s/f private terrace and a dedicated basement storage area. The co-op has high ceilings and windows offering natural light. The building underwent a fully-funded capital improvement program, which included new elevators.

"The pioneers who purchased space at 450 West 31st St. many years ago are being handsomely rewarded when they sell in today's market. Studio 450 purchased the space well before Related and Brookfield conceived their development plans for the area and they took advantage of the tremendous appreciation in value that has occurred," said Lyon.

"Hudson Yards continues to attract institutional and sophisticated finance firms. Melkonian Capital recognized that the top floors at 450 West 31st St. offers them a way to invest in the ever-changing neighborhood and design and create an exceptional office space," said Rudder.
