

Anchin, Block & Anchin recently hires Thomas Lee as new director

August 04, 2008 - New York City

Thomas Lee, a recognized consultant in the litigation support arena, has joined Anchin, Block & Anchin's expanding litigation Support, Forensics, and valuation Services team as director.

Prior to joining Anchin, Lee gained almost 15 years of experience assisting clients and counsel in financial disputes and conducting financial investigations with Navigant Consulting. He has developed and analyzed financial claims in a variety of litigation matters including product liability, false claims, whistle blowers, breach of contract, intellectual property, and fraud. He has advised public and private corporations in a variety of industries, including financial services, manufacturing, agriculture, real estate, health care, telecommunications, and government.

Lee's career began with Coopers & Lybrand in its disputes and investigations practice and also includes six years in the banking and brokerage industry, where he obtained the Series 7, Series 63 and Series 65 licenses.

Under the leadership of partner Stephen Shulman, CPA/ABV, CVA, Anchin's Litigation, Forensics, and Valuation Services team is respected in the legal and business communities for its depth, intellectual capital, and use of state-of-the-art technology. Team members are recognized as experts in federal and state courts.

Anchin, Block & Anchin LLP today is recognized as one of the "best of the best" accounting firms in the country (Inside Public Accounting). The full-service firm, with a staff of more than 400, serves privately-held businesses and high net worth individuals with a wide range of traditional and non-traditional advisory services, including financial statement preparation; tax planning and compliance services; economic development and tax incentives; management and succession advisory services; litigation support, forensic accounting and valuation services; merger and acquisition services; and wealth management.
