

TPG Architecture elevates Berger, Krois, Massaux, Revkin, Yavrouian, DeLisio, Hughes, Peng, and Rosa

August 04, 2008 - New York City

TPG Architecture recently promoted several high level professionals, which became effective earlier in the year. Of the three most senior promotions, one came from within TPG's Retail studio, while the corporate practice appointed several top level directors. The remaining four were promoted to studio director.

Lawrence Berger, RA, senior director, was promoted to managing design director of corporate. He has over 30 years of experience.

Edgar Krois, RA, was promoted to associate principal. He is a registered architect in New York and New Jersey and holds a bachelor of Architecture and a bachelor of Fine Arts from Syracuse University.

Luc Massaux, an associate principal, was recently promoted to managing design director of corporate. He has over 20 years of professional experience covering projects of widely ranging size and scope.

Diana Revkin, LEED AP, senior associate, has been promoted to managing director of retail. She has over 20 years of retail experience.

Stephen Yavrouian, AIA, senior director, has been promoted to managing director of corporate. He has more than 30 years of experience in the industry. He is a registered architect and has been in senior management for over a decade.

Michael DeLisio was recently promoted to studio director of corporate. DeLisio is a dedicated and innovative project manager with over 10 years of experience.

Thomas Hughes, RA, associate principal, was promoted to studio director of corporate. He is an experienced project manager and architect who has applied his design and technical skills to a wide range of projects. Hughes joined TPG Architecture in 1999.

Kenneth Peng, AIA, senior associate, has been promoted to studio director of corporate. Peng has over 15 years of architectural design, project management, real estate and facilities management experience. He is a registered architect in the state of New York and a member of the American Institute of Architects. Peng joined TPG in 2003.

Ivan Rosa, RA, NCARB, was promoted to studio director of corporate. Rosa has more than 15 years of experience as an architect and project manager.

TPG Architecture was founded in 1979 and has grown from its initial dual partnership to a design firm of over 225 staff, with offices in New York City, Long Island and London. While its core competencies are in corporate and retail design, the firm has cultivated practice groups in broadcast, architecture, healthcare and branding and graphics. TPG has recently completed work on the headquarters relocation of EMI Music Publishing in the Chelsea Market building, and the new League headquarters for the NHL. TPG is presently completing the Landmark and retail restoration at The Plaza Hotel, renovations to the Manhattan Headquarters for the Hess Corporation and retail renovations to the historic Chelsea Market Building.
