

Cushman of C&W named co-chairman of iCrete

August 08, 2008 - Front Section

According to iCrete, John Cushman III, chairman of global real estate services firm Cushman & Wakefield, has been named co-chairman of the board of iCrete.

Cushman serves on several other boards, including Cushman & Wakefield Inc.; ARTOC Universal Properties in Cairo, Egypt; D.A. Cushman Realty Corp.; Callaway Golf Company and Inglewood Park Cemetery. He is also a director and chairman of Cushman Winery Corp., owner of Azca Mesa Winery.

Cushman's expanded role as co-chair of iCrete's Board is effective immediately.

iCrete is a state-of-the-art concrete technology company that is revolutionizing the concrete industry with the patented iCrete[®] System. The iCrete System dramatically increases the quality and performance of ready-mix and precast concrete, creates measurable cost efficiencies, and reduces greenhouse gas emissions. iCrete optimizes concrete mix designs and provides a technology-based production and quality control system for any concrete construction project, generating benefits for industry stakeholders including producers, contractors, architects, engineers, owners, developers and government agencies.
