What was your greatest professional achievement or most notable project in the last 12 months?

The beginning of 2018 marked the start of construction of 555 E St. in Washington D.C. of which I have the honor of being the project manager. This new mixed-use building is a neighborhood transformative project in DC's southwest area. It is designed with the finest architectural sensibilities; integrating market rate residential units, affordable senior units, a CitizenM hotel, and retail space. Once complete, it will successfully transform a sprawl of office buildings and empty streets into a walkable block, rich in diverse, active and livable uses.

What trend(s) do you predict to dominate your industry in 2019?

I foresee the following residential and hospitality design trends dominating 2019:

Escalation in the integration of compact residential units within a strong rental market.
Further incorporation of pre-manufacturer modular components into hospitality design.
Pre-manufacture modular residential units starting to spawn in the rental market.

What does it mean to you to be a team player?

For me being a team player means not so much about working along a diverse group of people as it is about achieving a common goal together, to have a sense of purpose which is propelled by motivation and reflects upon not just me, but on every member having a stake in the outcome. A successful team must act in a coordinated formation, where every player brings about an essential and unique skill that once assembled and put in action, produces wonders. To summarize, these are the essential characteristics of a successful team:

Sense of collective purpose

Sustained motivation

Smart application of skills
