

Stott forms Steelbone Design Company

September 29, 2008 - Spotlights

Richard Stott has formed Steelbone Design Company. Stott, an architect with extensive background in designing buildings, and formerly of Flynn+Stott Architects, a 10 year old Southampton architectural firm, is the company's president and founder. Steelbone is comprised of three distinct practice areas: architecture, graphic design and engineering. The services provided are highly integrated, supporting a continuum among architecture, custom design furniture, graphic design, and structural and civil engineering.

Stott designed over 100 buildings across the country encompassing many building types.
