Huntington, NY Daniel Gale Sotheby's International Realty (DGSIR) is in the process of moving its long-time office to a corner location at 263 Main St. in downtown Huntington Village. The new office will reap the benefits of high visibility and heavy foot traffic.

According to DGSIR's CEO Deirdre O'Connell, the new office is expected to open in early spring. "To say that we are excited about our new location is an understatement," said O'Connell.

"We are delighted to bring a state-of-the-art real estate office to downtown Huntington Village. Not only is Huntington the hometown of Daniel Gale Sotheby's International Realty, our very first office was founded on this busy corner in 1922. Its opening will coincide with the start of our 100th anniversary celebration."

The new office, located at 263 Main St. (NYS Rte. 25A) with display windows running alongside New York Ave., has already been festooned with signs bearing Daniel Gale Sotheby's International Realty's familiar whale logo. As the new home base for some 50 real estate advisors, the Main St. office will replace Daniel Gale Sotheby's International Realty's longtime office at 187 Park Ave.e, north of the village. "We're sad to say goodbye to our longtime home on Park Avenue," said O'Connell, "but this new office will incorporate design elements developed to accommodate the latest technology, the health and safety needs of those who work there or visit, and include leading edge meeting rooms."

Eric McCarthy, sales manager of the Huntington office, is equally enthused about the move to Main St. "An essential part of our culture is being part of the local community, and we will be in the thick of it here on Main St. Huntington is among Long Island's most desirable communities in which to live, and we look forward to inviting our neighbors, friends and passersby to stop in and say hello."
