"Gamco continuously served the architectural and construction community as it recovered from the drastic impact of the pandemic, and this past year was very positive for us," said Melora Chang, Vice President of Gamco. "We found a way to move forward and help others during the pandemic with a specialty product called Invisiguard, which served as a chic glass partition to help combat the spread of the virus. Gamco also launched a major initiative to enhance the energy efficiency of our product lines. For example, our upgraded curtain wall product, the Series CW250P, now offers significantly better thermal performance capable of meeting today's demanding energy efficient applications.
