

Racanelli Construction Co. named Million Dollar Butler Builder

September 13, 2022 - Long Island

Melville, NY Racanelli Construction Co. has been honored as a Million Dollar Builder by Butler Builder for Butler Manufacturing (Kansas City, MO). Butler Builder for Butler Manufacturing is a leading building-solutions company providing the design, manufacture and marketing of metal building systems for commercial construction. The award recognizes builders who have generated one million dollars in sales of Butler's building systems on a yearly basis.

Racanelli Construction became an authorized Butler Builder for Butler Manufacturing in 2015. The company has a proven track record in successful pre-engineered building systems having applied them in diverse applications. They range from manufacturing and industrial facilities, and municipal buildings, convention centers to office, self-storage units, and educational and athletic centers. Racanelli Construction is widely-respected as a high-quality builder with a strong reputation for excellent project management and on-time project delivery.

According to Racanelli Construction's director of marketing Carmine Martuscello, who also oversees the company's pre-engineering building systems marketing and sales, "Butler's building systems are outstanding solutions that meet our clients' needs for high quality, pre-engineering solutions that deliver flexible design, high performance, and high design features. They are high value building systems for organizations that want a high-quality, cost-effective and time-efficient building solution. We are proud to represent the line and look forward to continuing our successful relationship with Butler."
