

Bennett named sector executive for Henderson Engineers

August 29, 2023 - Design / Build

Andrew Bennett

Manhattan, NY Henderson Companies has appointed 22-year industry veteran Andrew Bennett as business sector executive for Henderson Engineers and Henderson Building Solutions. In his new role, Bennett will oversee operations for five practices: core and shell, mission critical, mixed use, warehouse, and workplace.

Bennett has held a series of noteworthy leadership roles since joining Henderson in 2014. As health sector outpatient practice director, he most recently oversaw ground-up and renovation projects for healthcare providers nationwide. He additionally has served on the Henderson Companies board of directors since 2021 and has held the role of director of operations for the company's New York office for nine years. Both his board and office leadership positions remain unchanged.

“Andrew is a multifaceted leader with a knack for juggling a variety of major responsibilities with finesse and delivering results. His promotion to sector leadership couldn't be more well deserved,” said Kevin Lewis, CEO of Henderson Engineers and president of Henderson Companies. “To know Andrew is to know a professional who sincerely cares for the people he works with and inspires them to strive for excellence. I'm excited to see the lasting impact he will continue to have on our clients and colleagues as he leads our business sector.”

Bennett said, “My time at Henderson has been the most rewarding period of my career given the people-first culture and the high level commitment to innovating our industry's approach to building systems design, construction management, and commissioning. It's an honor to take on this latest responsibility and build upon the technical excellence and client experience that our Business Sector is known for.”

A licensed professional engineer (PE) and certified commissioning agent (CxA), Bennett earned his mechanical engineering degree from Lafayette College in Easton, Pa.
