

JRM Construction and Young Projects design 36,000 s/f office space for Galaxy Digital

September 26, 2023 - Design / Build

Manhattan, NY JRM Construction Management has completed Galaxy Digital's office space in Battery Park City. The project, designed by Young Projects, breaks away from the corporate mold and infuses the space with a personality that reflects the unique culture of Galaxy Digital, a leader in digital asset and blockchain technologies.

Galaxy Digital's new 36,000 s/f office represents a departure from traditional workspaces. The project features highly curated architectural elements, including the elevator vestibule, lobby entrance, work café, and central offices. Young Projects' design choices, implemented by JRM Construction, have transformed the space into a dynamic environment that fosters collaboration and creativity.

"We are thrilled to have collaborated with Galaxy Digital on this exciting project, which marks a significant milestone for both JRM Construction and our client. Young Projects' innovative design, brought to life by JRM Construction, aimed to create an office space that inspires collaboration, sparks innovation and fosters creativity. By infusing the design with a playful personality specific to Galaxy Digital, we have achieved a remarkable transformation," said David McWilliams, CEO of JRM Construction.

The elevator lobby is a standout feature that propelled this project to win the 2023 NYCxDigital Award for "Best Tech Office". Its low-resolution media ceiling displays text from cryptocurrency's founding document, scrolling across the screen in a Star Wars-style crawl, making it an instantly recognizable and immersive experience.

JRM Construction, implementing Young Projects' design, employed a series of design strategies to achieve the desired outcome that brought a fresh perspective to the office. Using lighting, semi-transparent metal chains, and tactical signage created a captivating experience while promoting transparency and encouraging idea-sharing between different teams and departments.

The project's centerpiece is the lobby area, where JRM Construction and Nathan Frey Plaster innovated cast plaster panels with a non-repetitive pattern and monolithic relief, serving as a bold statement, embodying the vibrant personality of Galaxy Digital.

The project used projected geometry to guide employees through the open office plan, creating dynamic pathways and reinforcing the sense of a connected and collaborative environment.
