

2024 Women in Construction: Sandra Torsney, JT Magen

March 26, 2024 - Spotlights

Sandra Torsney
Superintendent

“Sandra commands respect from clients and colleagues through her commitment and dedication as a superintendent. Her communication and collaboration skills are exceptional, often meeting with senior executives who repeatedly request her expertise. Despite challenges that arise, her passion never waivers, and I’m confident she has a bright future in construction.” - Charles Russo, Senior Project Manager at JT Magen.

What do you like best about being a woman in the AEC industry? As a woman in the AEC industry, I appreciate the opportunity to challenge stereotypes and pave the way for future generations. Contributing to innovative projects and collaborating with diverse teams is empowering. Every success defies expectations, showcasing the strength and capability of women in this dynamic field.

What is your favorite building in New York? One Vanderbilt is one of my favorites. Working on multiple projects there has been transformative. The collaborative atmosphere and diverse professionals I encounter daily make it an inspiring workplace. The architectural beauty and central location add to its allure, making it an ideal hub for creativity and growth.
