“We are excited to bring our unique take on artwork, graphics and interior design to businesses in Tampa,” said Diana Lillo, CEO of InspireDesign Creative Studio. “From creative artwork to biophilic design aimed at improving creative and inspiring workspaces as well as employee and customer health and well-being, we’re excited to repeat the success we’ve had in the New York marketplace in Florida.”

InspireDesign Creative Studio has delivered unique space enhancements for clients in New York including healthcare clients Stony Brook Medicine, Mount Sinai South Nassau; education clients SUNY Old Westbury and St. Joseph’s University New York; and corporate clients including Dealertrack Technologies and Honda.

“Working with a proven leader in their industry, we’re so happy to support InspireDesign’s artwork fabrication initiative to manufacture locally in the Tampa region. We appreciate their sustainability initiatives to avoid unnecessary trucking and consciously minimize waste during production,” said Luis Romero, CEO of MarkMaster Inc. “Tampa and the west Florida Coast market is sure to gravitate to their new ideas.”

InspireDesign Creative Studio combines the expertise of a polished New York City creative studio, the scrappiness of a start-up and the service of a trusted collaborator. ID is built on a culture of innovation, wellness, sustainability and collaborative principles.

“I had the pleasure of collaborating with InspireDesign Creative Studio to showcase workplace culture through on-brand wall graphics and they were able to take a vision and turn it into stunning visuals without losing the impact of the message,” said Joanna Pawlowska, marketing consultant. “Art can be overwhelming, the ID team simplified the process and provided not just inspired spaces but also an aesthetic direction in order to produce a complete visual thought.”
