

Edward D'Orazio, AIA Architects reopens

May 22, 2009 - Long Island

Edward D'Orazio, AIA Architects, an innovative professional services firm specializing in architecture, planning and design/build projects has reopened.

With over 30 years experience representing local, regional and national clients, tenants, developers and landlords with industrial, retail and commercial office properties, they are excited by the opportunities that these challenging times present and intend to remain a resource to the brokerage community and provide assistance necessary to help bring your transactions to closing.

They provide clients with: large firm experience, expertise and professional credentials with the efficiencies of a lean, aggressive, growing firm.
