

Company Profile: Bohler Engineering

December 18, 2009 - Upstate New York

Bohler Engineering began in 1981 as a small office in N.J. Ludwig "Lud" Bohler pledged to provide unsurpassed quality and an aggressive approach to all projects. Their strategy has always been to listen intently to their clients and help them identify and achieve their objectives. This commitment and continued response to their clients' needs has prompted many of them to rely on Bohler in new markets, trusting their abilities and bringing them into new geographic regions. Their clients have helped them grow from the original headquarters based in northern N.J., to an organization of over 400 employees that now serves the major markets of the eastern U.S. Bohler offers a full complement of in-house services that are backed by their expert staff, regulatory savvy, and state-of-the-art technology.
