

Retail Company Profiles: D.F. Pray

March 05, 2010 - Shopping Centers

Since their founding in 1959 by C.Edward Pray, D.F. Pray has been building excellence by specializing in professional, hands-on, self-performing general contracting services both regionally and nationally. Edward's son, Scott Pray, continues the family tradition of building excellence started by his father. Through 50 years of quality, D.F. Pray's emphasis continues to be on the client and their specific needs. During the pre-construction, planning phase, and/or the construction process itself, the activities and objectives of the project team are designed to create value for the client while achieving the maximum scheduling and budgetary outcomes.

D.F. Pray recognizes that success also truly depends on human factors such as teamwork, communication, and leadership. These are goals that, in the end, boil down to the interactions of people. They pride themselves on their systems, people, and commitment to their clients' success. In addition, it is D.F. Pray's dedication to corporate values runs deep. They do not begin and/or end with their clients. They take pride in the low turnover rate of employees and the family like atmosphere among their staff. Their goal is to maintain a "small" company spirit as the mainstay of their continued growth as a corporation.
