

H2M donates to the Interfaith Nutrition Network on Thanksgiving

December 07, 2007 - Long Island

Every year H2M employees gather together in the Thanksgiving spirit to have a company feast. This year the president and CEO of H2M, John Molloy, P.E., wanted to share the spirit of Thanksgiving by giving back to the community with a donation to the Interfaith Nutrition Network. At the company luncheon, Molloy presented the check for INN, which was given in the name of H2M and all the participants from the recent "Canstruction" Contest.

H2M won 2 awards with their design for Canstruction, which was a food donation charity designed as a competition between local architecture and engineering firms. Its focus was to create structures entirely out of canned food and then donate all the cans to Long Island Cares/Harry Chapin Food Bank.

The spirit of donating food carried over into the company feast and extra food and money was collected to donate along with the check from Molloy.
